Influenza vaccination is the most important personal protective measure for maintaining health and preventing infection among health care workers. Despite the importance of this protection, in practice, only 48% to 58% of health care workers report receiving influenza vaccine during the year before the 2007--2008 season. This review summarizes the literature on factors that influence health care worker vaccine uptake, including vaccine recommendations and recommendations from colleagues, incentives for or barriers to getting the vaccine, reminders and recall of the vaccine, and feedback about vaccine safety and effectiveness. For most of the vaccine-related measures that are consistently associated with increased vaccine coverage, interventions can be implemented to improve coverage. Future research should focus on the effectiveness of interventions to increase influenza vaccination rates. A familiar control room from the John Lewis era, now for sale – very spacious, high ceilings, strong bones, workable if not as attractive as the original, kitted out in excellent contemporary style by an up-to-the-minute design team. Updates have included a front-of-house opening and an addition to the existing accommodation, so we've also rebranded the pub into the John Lewis by Wolves Heads Tavern, and refurbished the lower bar and ground floor to a handsome mix of minimalist and contemporary styles. The existing bar top was replaced in a linear style, blending stainless steel and oak. The existing pub interior was re-finished in contemporary style, with pale wood & concrete flooring, and large office-style windows on the ground floor. The existing wainscot was stripped back and re-plastered, and the original furniture from the John Lewis era brought back, with some notable additions to soften the character. The addition to the lower bar with snug area (see photo) sits above a slightly raised basement, which provides room for entertaining, with its own bespoke bar. The internal storage area can be used for stock or seating. The lower bar joins the existing lower bar top, creating a seamless but separate space to the existing room, with seating, snug and additional storage. We worked with a team of experienced designers and craftsmen on the redevelopment project, delivering both iconic and bespoke designs that successfully carry the narrative of the John Lewis department store brand. The pub has an excellent function room, which can be booked for any number of occasions 82138339de
