Virtual Screen Spy is a program that monitors all the activities that you do on your computer, except the ones that you turn it off. Virtual Screen Spy records each and every activity that your computer is doing, each and every time you view the captured image. To keep your PC safe and confidential, you can view the captured image of your computer activity directly from a virtual display of your own PC. Virtual Screen Spy allows you to monitor multiple computers simultaneously. While you are using the captured images, the images captured of the computer you are using are not recorded. The program only takes images of the users that are turned off. The images of the user are deleted after several minutes. The program is highly optimized for PCs. Even computers with low specification are able to capture the activities in just a few seconds. The program will be saving all captured images on your computer until you delete them manually. If you're using the screenshots, the images are saved in the folder specified by you. For example, you can save your captured images in your Desktop, if you choose that option, or you can save the images in a folder named as "Virtual Screen Spy". You can define how often Virtual Screen Spy will take screen captures of your computer activities. This feature allows you to decide on the frequency at which you want to view your computer activity. You can view your captured images with an easy to use viewer. The images are saved in a folder, by default the folder name is "Captured Screen". You can view your captured images one by one, or as a slide show. You can define the number of captured images that will be shown at once in a slide show. If you like, you can view your captured images one by one without using a slide show. You can view your captured images on your virtual monitor on your PC, or you can save them on your local hard drive. There is an option to save the captured images in a folder, by default the folder name is "Captured Screen". If you are viewing your images on your virtual monitor, they are saved in a folder specified by you. For example, if you choose to save your captured images in your Desktop, they will be saved in a folder named as "Captured Screen". You can remove your saved screenshots. By the default option, Virtual Screen Spy will remove the screenshots after 7 days. This option allows you to delete the screenshots that you have been viewing at any time. You can also define how many days you want Virtual Screen Spy to delete your
