After a bankruptcy and finding out they didn't own any games, it is safe to say they didn't have a ton of faith that the company would be back in full swing. There have been rumors of a potential HD/Wii U version of the Just Dames franchise but no official announcement. There have been many rumors including one about a Dance Dance Revolution-esque party game, music games, a third game in the Quintet series, and a non-Fruit Ninja THQ game. According to the Nintendo Wii U website, there's a third-party publisher announcement at the E3 2012 conference this year which means something might get announced there. No more comments Video Games are serious business. We understand that. Our passion is all about quality entertainment. We strive to provide the best news and reviews for every game we cover. We love honest opinions on games and this allows us to give the proper credit to games we feel deserve it while still keeping our own personal taste and opinions out of it all. We want to provide an all encompassing news and information hub on the games industry, not just what somebody tells us is "the best" game.Estelle B. C. Nwazuri Estelle B. C. Details: A: There is a known bug in Azure Storage 2.1 which is causing the above issues. As Microsoft hasn't released a patched version of storage library, you have to use the Azure Storage 1.7 as explained here. Azure Storage library 2.1 should be installed at /Application/bower_components/azure-storage/lib/azure-storage-node/. Edit 1: In order to use Azure Storage 1.7, you should create a bower.json file and add the following entry: "dependencies": { "azure-storage": "1.7" } Servicelink first in UK market to announce integration of Nutter's 'SafeDial' into the company's platform The addition of Nutter's SafeDial SDK makes ServiceLink the first SaaS manufacturer in the UK to offer complete user lifecycle management, including integration of Nutter's 'SafeDial' technology. Disabled people can now call or send text messages to any type of landline or mobile service provider in the UK using SafeDial with the assistance of a DialTyping 'service'. The service is free and available for both desktop and mobile apps. ServiceLink has gained considerable market share in the SaaS segment in the UK since its launch in 2009 and has grown rapidly through a steady focus on meeting customer needs and responding rapidly to market demands. ServiceLink's platform allows end-users to access their calls and messages from any app, in any country, on any device. In 2009 ServiceLink established the 'SafeDial' service to deliver peace of mind to disabled consumers, as well as allow customers to make calls or send text messages, wherever their communications need to go. In a statement, ServiceLink said: "By integrating SafeDial into our product, we are now the only UK company offering an end-to-end user lifecycle management service. "This will make ServiceLink the first UK SaaS provider to be able to offer full end-to-end lifecycle management, and we're pleased to also be the first in the UK market to announce our plans to integrate SafeDial to our customers. "Our customers have indicated that the integrated solution is a major improvement to their service, as it allows them to make calls or send text messages from any app, in
