There are extraordinary items in the world; rare, mysterious artifacts that have the power to change the fate of the world. These objects are held in safekeeping in the powerful hands of the College of Plenipotentiaries. In order for these plenipotentiaries to use their abilities responsibly and to protect the world, they must hold a national ceremony wherein an heir is chosen from the college's pool of candidates. But when two of the candidates stand at opposite sides of the world, the heir becomes a blindsided pawn in a high-stakes battle for the fate of the planet. The world-building in this game is superb. The little issues that the player must think about and solve on their own are the icing on the cake.

Gameplay: The gameplay of the game is outstanding. It uses a mix of action and strategy mixed in with A.I, timing, and a little thinking. The goal is to get the heir to their throne on their own side of the globe by any means necessary. One of the tools you have at your disposal are your henchmen. An individual can carry one, two, or more depending on the amount of henchmen you have. Each henchmen can be used at any time during the game. When using a henchman, you can choose from a list of skills to add to the henchmen. These skills can aid in getting over barriers, using things, and more. Each henchman has three attributes at any given time: • Strength – The amount of damage they do in battle. • Agility – The time it takes for them to get from point A to B • Cunning – The amount of damage they can cause while being sneaky (this is the most useful attribute of them all) The henchmen also have a "Stamina" bar. Once the stamina bar is at zero, the henchman has been stunned and will no longer be able to help you. There are 10 different categories of henchmen; each henchman is worth a certain amount of points depending on how they are placed. There are five types of henchmen; (1) Hidan (Assassin), (2) Kanzuri (Expert), (3) Sōsuke (Specialist), (4) Yōko (Doctor), and (5) Eikoku (Monitor) The henchmen give you access to a few different types of actions. 1. Attack

A: Try using `float:right` instead of just `float:right`. `.colortone h2 { float: right; }` EDIT: As for an answer to the question in the comment, things like this can be fixed in a couple of ways: Use `.colortone h2 { display: inline-block; vertical-align:top; }` I'd do this with no change to the classes given, but if you want additional control on your flow you can give its parent a separate height. Q: Finding the adjoint matrix with optimal complexity Say we have A : a linear transformation defined on \mathbb{R}^n such that $A\vec{1}=0$ and $A^T\vec{1}=0$. Now, A is represented as a matrix whose rows and columns are the basis vectors of \mathbb{R}^n . Say that we have a vector \vec{h} in \mathbb{R}^n . What is the complexity of finding the optimal matrix A^* such that $A^*A\vec{1} = \vec{h}$? Say that

From the depths of mind, a babbling brook reaches and spreads through the white house. A boy's bird is dead, struck by a car, and he spends all day mourning. From the wings of an owl, shadows walk. In your own mind you are the one who listens to the birds. Once, there were ghosts. They are silent; there is only their music. They glide through the great forest. And they seek you. And just like the blackbird, the raven and the crow, they still live in you.

What's new:

Overview: Wine & Dine™ character creation is created around various groups for character interaction, and each player has a pool of points or "prizes" that must be spent during these interactions to gain advantage. Advantages & Disadvantages: We have advantages to the group play that this format will produce in-game. Some characters have "slow rolls" to keep experienced players from overwhelming newer players, but all being considered, we think it will balance out well. Duel & Brawl: Using two game tokens, one player forms a Duel or Brawl with another character. For a single round, a character can can move, attack, change attack types, attack once again, or repeat as many times as needed. A card can be given to the player(s) or someone else can take a card from the character.

Stamina from both players is put to work here. For a Brawl, the winner of the round then becomes the player. For a Duel, the winner is declared in two attempts: if two same player cards are held on the board at the same time, the first to be brought into the discard is the winner, or if no cards can be brought in on the second attempt, the player with the most victory points, based on how all the rounds are played, determines the winner. Advantages: The brawls are where we can incorporate occasional weapon plays and such, since the brawls are player-controlled. This also allows us to have multiple brawls in a round. Conflicts: In the Brawl and Duel rounds, characters are placed along a wall, street, or other boundary on one side of the board, and the remaining players are on the other side. These inner and outer boundaries usually form conflict areas where characters can enter and leave the board, or where conflicts start and end. Characters entering conflict areas on either side are represented by a die face, and winning gives a victory point to both sides' player, based on how the die faces match. Advantages: Creating conflict areas for players to interact in is a great way to offer additional play for new and existing players, but they have some drawbacks as well: The inner walls create tension and drama. We'll have to work to ensure this is in-game, and we may have to adjust the environment to help with this. The inner walls sometimes hinder movement options, especially for melee combatants. This will likely be something to consider, especially as Toposim Caribbean for FSX: Steam Edition is the best island flying simulator in the Caribbean. Feel like you are exploring the Islands that were first sighted by Christopher Columbus and Pedro Menendez de Aviles. Toposim provides a unique and realistic simulator for flight over this region, offering all the features of a cockpit simulator but without the restriction of your own airfield. Toposim can be used in a virtual cockpit view with FSX Free, FSX Steam Edition or FSX: Steam Edition. Fly where and as much as you want, fly under visual conditions, and enjoy spectacular scenery. Explore the Islands that were the first sighted by Christopher Columbus and Pedro Menendez de Aviles, such as the Turks and Caicos Islands (US), Barbados (GB), Barbuda (GCC), Antigua (GCC), Anguilla (GCC) and Grenada. Even if you land at your airfield, explore every nook and cranny with topographical maps. Fly over the mangroves, villages, sugar plantations and golf courses, whilst watching out for military aircraft. Toposim was built in cooperation with real-life pilot and flight instructor David Goulding, who is one of the world's leading flight instructors. David has a vast practical experience of more than 200 hours on the 3D charts, islands and regions that form the Caribbean. The 3D models were built in cooperation with real-life island expert and professional pilot, who has flown over most of the Caribbean islands over the last 40 years. Pilot David Goulding provides you with the best possible flying conditions, first hand knowledge and insight into the Caribbean airspace, which is a unique and rarely found resource. Toposim is designed to be a stand-alone application, requiring no other flight sim; no exterior scenery. Once Toposim for FSX: Steam Edition is installed, Toposim is a download only application. Donate link: Toposim Caribbean is the ultimate FSUX2.0 Caribbean simulator, offering best possible LOD9 realistic terrain mesh for Caribbean region.
