Torrentz will one day be traced, as no torrent site is too large to be scaled back down, but it has been a joy watching the net's mid-growth bloom. You never need to worry about anything with this one. The sheer volume of content is captivating, and the fact that everything can be bought for a small price makes it a simple sensation. While most users are here for free content, there is no lack of support for those that want to upgrade the experiment to see what the site has to offer. If a user can pay for content on.torrents, then so can they.. and they will. So it pays to upgrade a few times, and hop in the queue, and download the content because you can't afford to wait. At its peak in 2011, a big release could have more than a half-million torrents. Now it's all about speed. Whereas a million torrents would be a low day for torrent sites that rely on community content, this one bursts through the limit with ease. With so many thousands torrents on.torrents, one could understandably dismiss the project as another "Open" release, and not pay attention.. if you so wish. The glaring and important fact that most folks don't realize is that the site has a huge catalog of content that we may never see outside of a few key.torrents. There are few 'community' files from major releases, or content that could benefit your personal needs or interests. But there is definitely a wealth of content that can be had, for a price. And there are thousands of classic films, many that most of us have never seen, that we can only be thankful for. Torrents aside, there are a few other moments that make this an essential site. You can find private PMs which you can only have with a very special user. There is plenty of moderation to be seen. And you can even pay for services such as live chat and translator software. To be honest, there are very few torrent sites that can equal this one in more than a few ways. And those that do can barely compete, considering what the site has to offer. For a community of users that is constantly growing and changing, this project is truly a community effort. There is nothing of this great site that isn't subject to the will of the collective. That's why it is key that everyone check this site out. They've given us the opportunity to
