of the nation's top healthcare construction firms. With over 20 years of experience building hospitals and other health care facilities, we are confident that we can be your one stop shop for all of your construction needs. We always focus on hiring skilled tradesmen to provide a high quality project. Our team has delivered some of the most prestigious healthcare facilities in the Mid-Atlantic region, including operations at NewYork-Presbyterian Brooklyn Methodist Hospital, Bellevue Hospital, and NewYork-Presbyterian Brooklyn Methodist Hospital. We love what we do and it shows.

Q: Sort,  $O(\log N)$  to  $O(N)$  In this  $O(\log N)$  algorithm, say that we have 3 elements: A, B, and C. The algorithm will run in a cycle and at each point it will take 2 steps towards the end of the list: Search through the list and find the first element which doesn't equal the element in question. (This is  $O(\log N)$ .) Check if it's equal. If it's not equal, insert the element into a queue. (This is  $O(1)$ .) If it is equal, run the loop again. I'm not sure how to turn it from  $O(\log N)$  to  $O(N)$ , can anybody help me out with this? A: The problem is that in each iteration the worst-case is  $O(N)$  and the loop continues for  $2N$  iterations. I assume there is a list with  $N$  elements and that element  $A$  is searched at position  $i$  in the iteration. At the beginning, there are  $N-1$  elements which have not been visited, and  $i$  is between 0 and  $N-1$  inclusive. So in the worst-case, the first time element  $A$  is searched, all elements are checked and A is not found. So the best-case is when  $i = 0$ , and

---
