Although Photoshop works fine on any Windows system, Linux is not fully supported. The site can connect to Photoshop CS5. If you are using Photoshop CS3, CS4, or CS5, you need to upgrade to CS5 or Photoshop CS5 Extended. After you get Photoshop up and running, the next thing you need is a good image. You can use the image you already created for the pteron or use a different one that inspires you. (The image in Figure 1-3 shows what's in my Photoshop folder.) (I do the best I can to keep a clean, organized folder.) Figure 1-3: A front-view diagram of an owl. In this tutorial, I create a simple owl image. I use a technique called grayscale for the background, which creates realistic-looking greys that blend from lightest to darkest. Then I add some simple text to the image and highlight a few objects for a little more dimension. Okay, back to the steps. They are simple and the process isn't hard, but it does take some practice to learn the basics so that you can become proficient in any version of Photoshop. Figure 1-4 shows the steps to follow: Figure 1-4: Creating an owl using basic techniques. 1. Start Photoshop CS5 and create a new document at the default size: 11 x 8 inches. 2. Select the Elliptical Marquee Tool (the little triangle with the arrow on it) from the Tools panel. 3. Holding down the Shift key, drag around the image to create a new selection area. Leave the marquee active. (It turns blue, indicating that the selection is active. You'll need to deselect the marquee when you're finished.) 4. Now you need to create a new layer in your Layers panel by clicking the Add Layer icon at the bottom of the Layers panel. Figure 1-5 shows this for clarity. 5. Click the New Layer icon above the gray area to create a new layer. The white area is the default white layer. 6. Create a new layer just below the default white layer by double-clicking the gray area. Figure 1-5: You can click the Add Layer icon to create a new layer. 7. Rename the new layer, in this case Owl 1, by double-clicking on it and

Hot Topics: Confucius Institute email sent to Colorado colleges keeps Chinese students and money out of U.S. By Michael Lyle, Camera Staff Writer Posted: 05/23/2014 12:01:00 AM MDT Updated: 05/24/2014 05:55:51 AM MDT In this May 23, 2014 photo, a college professor uses a tablet computer during class at Beijing University at the College of International Education campus in Denver. The Chinese government has launched more than 50 Confucius Institutes in the U.S., funded by the Chinese Ministry of Education and promoted by the Confucius Institute, a Chinese government-funded organization that claims to promote Chinese language and culture. (Mark Reis, The Associated Press) DENVER — China is expanding its presence in American colleges with the creation of a Confucius Institute in Colorado. The institute is located at a campus of the College of International Education, which has campuses throughout Colorado, as well as at two other colleges in the Denver area. The institute, which was launched by the Beijing University of Culture, receives no funding from the Chinese government. Instead, its budget comes from the Department of Education in China. The Confucius Institute is a branch of the Chinese government-funded organization, Confucius Institute, Inc. in Washington, D.C. The institute's mission is to promote Chinese language and culture in the U.S. and to "prov

Bilingual language proficiency and cognitive functioning of elderly Chinese-English bilinguals in North America. Language characteristics of elderly bilingually fluent Chinese-English (ChE) elderly persons in North America were examined to evaluate effects of prior cumulative exposure to the two languages on language and cognitive functioning. A majority of bilingually fluent elderly ChE in North America showed neither impaired language functions nor cognitive decline as measured in four different test batteries. However, significant correlations were found between proficiency scores in the speakers' native ChE and English and cognitive function in the batteries of verbal and non-verbal functioning. These findings add further evidence to the importance of considering language itself in the cognitive assessments of elderly persons, particularly of those who have been bilingually fluent for a long period of time.
