Modern Winchester Rifles DefenseReview's Kimber article impressed many of our readers. Then, a few days ago, we received an article about the Winchester Auto Rifle, mostly referring to the new model WG SR22, has to be the most unique, outrageous, and erotic gun/rifle that we've seen. Depending on whom you ask, this gun might be either really scary or really sexy, or both. You might never have noticed it, but Winchester (Missouri's version of Alabama guns) already has an extensive line of modern rifles. Modern shotguns, rifles, and revolvers. So, if Winchester did not invent the modern rifle, it probably should have gotten the credit for something because Winchester had a massive global influence on changes in the development of the modern rifle. Winchester ACOM MK25 with H&K MP5 grip. The company probably even influenced the future development of other rifle manufacturers. One example is the Smith & Wesson Model 1000. Smith & Wesson developed the Model 1000 in 1931 based on a modified Winchester Model 10. The Winchester Model 10. The winchester Model 10 had a vertical sliding bolt, which could be locked into the rear of the receiver, this would lock the bolt into position and chamber a round. In 1934, the sliding bolt was modified and the flat bolt was designed. The modern rifle developed by Smith & Wesson is called the Model 29, basically a copy of the Winchester Model 10. The Winchester
