The relative importance of cohesion and elasticity in two-dimensional particle suspensions with shear rates ranging from $10(0)$ to $10(5) \text{ s}^{-1}$ is quantitatively assessed in the context of granular suspension rheology. The shear stress is measured in the two-dimensional plate geometry used in a recent compression-tuning experiment by Dijksman and co-workers [Nature 2006, 443, 644-647]. We focus on the non-Newtonian properties of suspensions composed of nearly monodisperse silica particles. Our numerical model consists of elastic shells surrounding inelastic grains. We find that the response of a suspension is governed by the interplay of several factors: the particle area fraction ϕ , the particle elastic modulus E , and the particle-to-particle friction factor f . We show that the large-scale stress-dependent viscosity exhibits a simple power-law dependence on the shear rate to produce accurate fits to the data of Dijksman et al. It is found that particle interactions are important to reproduce all aspects of the experimental data, particularly the variation of the linear viscoelastic modulus with the shear rate at low shear rates and the elastic response at high shear rates. An important dimensionless number characterizing particle interactions is the ratio of the hardness-to-friction

Blue Jays have hired pitcher Matt Harvey as a minor league instructor and director of player development. Harvey hasn't pitched for the Blue Jays since 2012, but has spent the last three seasons as a major league starter with the Los Angeles Dodgers, New York Mets and San Francisco Giants. Harvey, 31, was a 10-year MLB veteran who pitched for the Mets (2012-16), Atlanta Braves (2011-12) and San Francisco (2007-10). Blue Jays pitchers and catchers report to Dunedin today, but Harvey won't be joining the staff until he's been officially named to a coaching staff position. Harvey made a brief visit to Toronto last month, including a brief day game appearance, but didn't pitch for the Blue Jays. He's coming off a 2018 season where he went 13-4 with a 3.19 ERA and 219 strikeouts in 173.2 innings pitched in 31 games (three starts) for the Giants. Harvey owns a career record of 64-57 with a 4.19 ERA and 1,341 strikeouts in 1,078.1 innings pitched in 114 games (79
