We are planning to hold a contest to find an EEPROM programmer. The main application of the programmer would be testing all the various 'clean-ups' done to the PA1038, PA1238, and PA2508 chips. One programmer would test all the various clean-ups to the PA1038, PA1238, and PA2508 chips. One programmer would test all the various clean-ups to the PA1038, PA1238, and PA2508 chips. The current version is sort of a "spray and pray" method, and there are lots of things that still aren't tested. The program handles all versions of the EEPROM, automatically detecting and using the correct library (v1 to v4). It handles the basic chip instructions, and a lot of the EEPROM specific instructions. The contest would basically be an elimination round. I would ask you to complete a very short survey at the end, which asks questions about the EEPROM programmers you've used, or heard of. This will help identify the best design and methods. The proposed winner would get an upgraded programmer and a free copy of the software. I have more than enough EEPROM programmers. The only requirement is that the programmer can handle the various SOT23-5 and SOT23-6 packages, which have different libraries, and different pin layout. The PA1004 package has the same pin out as the PA2508, but is half the size. Anyone from SOIC, TO-3, TQFP, and SOT23 packages are welcome to participate. To give you an idea of how busy I am at the moment, I am currently accepting entries, and am almost done with the programmer. I will be releasing the contest info in January, when I start to have time to clean up the current program and re-factor it to match the new tool. But I don't want the contest to eat up all my time. I posted an offer to make the programmer available on this forum. I'm in New Jersey and don't have the software yet, so if any EEPROM or EEPROM programmers are interested, let me know. [ETA: If you know of any good EEPR

Detection of hCG in ovarian cyst fluid. A series of 196 ovarian cysts which had been fluid-filled by centrifugation, aspiration or puncture were studied for hCG, hCG-beta and, when this was negative, LH using agar gel immunodiffusion and RIA. hCG was present in 50 of the 100 mature cysts analysed by agar gel immunodiffusion and three of the 30 aspirated cysts by RIA. Levels of hCG in fluid and in tissue were comparable. Levels of hCG-beta ranged from non-detectable to 0.5 IU/l. LH levels were present in only one fluid aspirate. The presence of hCG within the cyst fluids was confirmed by co-electrophoresis of cyst fluid and serum samples and by isoelectric focusing which showed that the major component migrated at pH 5.5.

Q: How to display TestSpeech by default in Microsoft Bot Framework and how to select it when needed? How to display TestSpeech by default in Microsoft Bot Framework and how to select it when needed? I created a new Microsoft Bot Framework project in Visual Studio 2017 and I followed the sample code from Microsoft (Bot Builder: So I created a bot project called MyBot and I use the "az bot account create" command to create a Azure Bot Service account for it. Then I used the code of the first sample (Using Dialog in Bot Builder) in Visual Studio and it works well. But here is my issue, after I added a test using the TestSpeech dialog it is displayed by default in the Emulator window when I launch it and I can't see it anymore if I choose to use my main conversational window. I would like to have the TestSpeech dialog displayed by default and be able to use the speech and ConversationDone when needed. Thanks in advance.

A: The Test Speech feature is an "edge case", and in the "general usage"
