Q: Propose: Close as duplicate when question is asked simultaneously in two sites and gets answered simultaneously I have two questions that are asked simultaneously: Question A in the "Stack Overflow main site" and Question B in the "TeX.SE meta site". When the users in the two sites answer both questions, the results from both sites can be combined to get the most accurate answer. This merging of knowledge is a fundamental part of Stack Overflow. The problem: The reason to ask the duplicate is not the same in all cases: On both sites, the reason to ask the question is different: On TeX.SE, the reason is to enable voting between experienced users to sort out which answer is better. Here, the objective should be to merge the knowledge to get an accurate answer that is correct on both sites. On Stack Overflow, the reason to ask the question is to learn from others about TeX. However, the objective on Stack Overflow should be to get the most accurate answer. Therefore, it makes sense to not put the two questions in the same flag. Otherwise, it can take a long time for the two sites to merge the knowledge, and the question on TeX.SE may get lost in the inactivity and the question on Stack Overflow may go missing (at which point, the knowledge on both sites will have been lost). Therefore: Proposal: When both questions are asked simultaneously on both sites, the question is put in the moderator queue to close as a duplicate, based on the most-upvoted answer. A: Proposal: When both questions are asked simultaneously on both sites, the question is put in the moderator queue to close as a duplicate, based on the most-upvoted answer. I support this for the following reason. Currently if a similar question is asked on two different websites, the answer is not necessarily the same. For example, there are some questions on TeX.SE that have a totally different answer than on MathOverflow (eg, this).

M.D.Anderson Cancer Center leader Jim Schutte said Friday that a new $136.1 million expansion and renovation of its main campus hospital will provide an important boost to the region. “This is definitely a win for Houston and the greater South Texas area,” said Schutte, the center’s CEO.

Q: Cómo dejar una columna con NULL de una tabla quiero dejar una columna que se llame "Disposición" de una tabla donde la columna se llame "Id y el Disposición es NULL. Esta es la tabla :

Id | Type | Descripción | Monto

----- 1 | 4 | Masajes | 20
2 | 4 | Ejercicios | 20 3 | 4 | Acupuntura | 10
4 | 4 | Masajes | 20 5 | 4 | Ejercicios | 20 6 |
4 | 4 | Acupuntura | 10 7 | 5 | Acupuntura | 10

Hasta ahora he llegado a esto: `SELECT a.Id ,a.Id ,a.Id ,ISNULL(a.Descripción,")`

`,a.Monto FROM EntidadParada a INNER JOIN Plan (NOLOCK) b ON a.Id = b.Id`

`WHERE b.Id = 3` A: Si quieres que la información de Disposición se vea válida y no se interprete como null, tienes que asegurarte de que la información de la misma sea válida en el caso que no exista:

SELECT a.Id ,a.Id ,a.Id
,ISNULL(b.Descripcion,"") ,a.Monto
