The layers are then brought together to create various images. You can merge multiple vector layers together to create a single image in a single step. Talking about something else... Is there a correlation between wearing Converse shoes and being a sailor? I just saw a commercial for Delta Airlines where someone's telling a story about his first flight. He said that when he was young, and did not know anything about aircrafts, he was afraid of flying. But, once he was seated and was faced with something going wrong on his flight, he began to realize that this was not a problem - it was an opportunity! Thus, he became all gung-ho about his first flight. When I saw the commercial, I thought, 'How nice!' - there is a case made for the fact that being able to laugh at yourself is good. But then I started thinking, 'What about if his first flight went right?' So, I looked up the commercial and it turns out that the person was a sailor... We're lucky in Christchurch to have some talented artists and musicians. They paint and create beautiful paintings, enjoy playing in bands, and compose wonderful music. Their talents are exceptional and I'm absolutely thrilled to be able to showcase a few of their works on the site. The present invention relates to new and useful improvements in fishing rods, reels and spools. The components of fishing rods and reels constitute a complex of elements which are made of different materials and are assembled into a fishing rod or a reel by way of a number of processes which, especially in the case of reels, can involve the making of a number of hand operations which may require the use of tools. This invention is concerned primarily with the mounting and assembly of the parts of a reel. In the case of a conventional fishing reel with a bobbin, the two halves of the bobbin are glued together to provide the bobbin. This is normally carried out by applying a thin coating of glue to the ends of the halves, then bringing them together in precisely the correct relative position, and pressing the parts together to spread the glue so as to secure the parts together into a single reel. In a known device for carrying out such operations, illustrated in FIGS. 1 and 2, the device comprises two fixed rails 1, 2 on which the two halves of the bobbin are placed in precisely the correct position and secured in place by a thin, flat gluing tool 3 which is pressed into the ends of the pieces. In operation, the tool is removed after
