How to monitor scheduled Jobs in AWS using terraform? I'm trying to monitor scheduled Amazon SQS jobs using terraform. I have googled a lot and keep searching but failed to find a solution. My requirement is, I have a cron expression which schedules the job. I need to check the status of the scheduled job using terraform code. I have referred this link but it says that jobs are not allowed using terraform. A: You can check the queued jobs count in AWS by using `sqs.message_count`. In your case your SQS message need to be sent from one EC2 instance and reading the messages and based on that you can parse the cron expression. One more thing for this you need to create SQS Policies which will allow to read the messages for particular SQS account. A: I struggled with this problem as well, and here is my solution. The first thing you need to know is that you can't simulate Amazon SQS Scheduled Messages with Terraform and CloudWatch Logs. There is no module that can simulate messages in the Queue, and this module doesn't allow you to set a Schedule like in AMZ.

Step 1. Create an EC2 Instance An EC2 Instance is very important to have in order to simulate these messages using CloudWatch Logs.

Step 2. Edit the CloudWatch Logs Service You need to edit the service in the following way: Open

CloudWatch Logs Click on the service you want to change (in my case it is "Logs for Redshift") Scroll down to the "Metric Filter" Section Search for the SQS Scheduled Messages metric to find it (in my case it was name=SQS.*) Step 3. Change the Filter to match your specific SQS Message name Change the Rule to: ((datetime(timestamp) > ago(1h)) AND (datetime(timestamp)
