Thursday, April 3, 2009 This is not a lame titles, since it could be meaningless. But it fits really well in the letter. It's the first time I post something here and I feel really alone. Being a first-time writer, I'm not surprised of it. As you know, blogs are new and there's not a lot of writers around. But, at least I tried to keep as active as I could. Well, with the summer now fast approaching, I have to note that things are changing again. Not really. I still work at same job and the same place, with some others who I get in touch because I work there. But, routines are changing. Every time I get back from home, I know my office teammates are busy too. There are too much workload on the switch hour. But sometimes, even after leaving the office at 6 PM, it feels like I still hadn't been away. At least, a little bit. I've been having it really hard, lately. Few months ago, I was really good at handling all of this. I stopped being a recluse at the office, I started going out with my friends more often, I wasn't hardly on my phone. At times I felt like I don't need to be anymore, but then I'd get my phone and a call about it from a friend or from a supervisor. It's what I expected. I just wasn't expecting that I still kept feeling the same old me. Sometimes the phone would ring and I wouldn't answer it. Maybe it was back then, when I was far too busy to spend time for it. Maybe I liked being busy. I wasn't always busy and I was tired and felt miserable and all of that at the same time. Or maybe at that time, it was just too hard to stop the habit of being busy. So, out of the blue, came the text to it, the call and the gossips. It was really hard for me to forget what I've known before, since I had absolutely no way to forget. But, I'm not going to hide things. It really was a good thing for me. I got to talk to my friends more often without lie, even if I felt like I was hurting them. I got to go out more with my friends
