back then, the focus was on creating a cohesive model to represent design intent and provide accurate information. since then, the 3d modeling and engineering digital revolutions have taken the home-building industry to new heights—enabling everyone in the construction community to collaborate around a common idea, using digital tools, on a truly integrated model. infraworks is the industry-leading bim platform for civil engineering, roads, and utilities professionals. users can work with a variety of tools and components—including civil 3d, bentley, pocketcad, and more—to build a single, integrated model using direct, real-world connections. a $29.99 purchase is required to license or purchase an autodesk subscription that includes the autodesk infraworks application. for additional information, please call autodesk at 1-800-336-8252. autodesk designs, manufactures, and distributes the most useful, comprehensive and flexible solutions for 3d modeling, product design, engineering and construction. all of autodesk's products are based on a single, open platform called 3d 360. through 3d 360, a single software installation provides all the applications you need, regardless of the hardware or operating system you're running. autodesk infraworks is the geospatial and engineering bim platform that enables parametric model-based planning and design of civil infrastructure in the context of the real world. with infraworks, users can more easily evaluate and convey design intent within the context of a projects surroundings; you can aggregate data from various sources, and design decisions made earlier in the project lifecycle then, the design model can be moved downstream to autocad civil 3d for detailed design and construction documentation with minimal loss of critical information improving decision making, project stakeholder buy-in, and saving both time and money.
