It's that time again, the time when we all come together to blast through our best performance of the year! Last year, we made a couple of changes: Instead of doing one main world and having separate daily tasks, we implemented a 'Grand World' with multiple worlds. We also implemented an in-game ranking system so you can see where you stand against other Summoners. For the coming year, we plan to add even more new features to the game: The introduction of Seasonal Scores for each category of players, allowing players to compare their performance throughout the year Internationalisation of the game in terms of languages and currencies A new ranking system to allow for better statistics and comparison An in-game leaderboard to allow players to compare themselves against each other A more integrated way to communicate with your teammates A roster update to remove unnecessary players for tournaments (we will have this in a separate blog post) This is just the beginning. We are excited about the future of Summoners and plan on releasing some new features and improvements throughout the year. The Community Team would like to apologise for the delay in answering your questions. There are only so many people that can answer your questions. Until next time! I have a string which is in the following format: yyyy-mm-dd This string is a date and it comes from a text file, which I wrote an Android code to parse and load into a list view. I have this same string now, and I want to convert it to a Java date object, to get the start date and end date, so I can start a method to find the maximum age (in days) between both dates. I don't know how to convert that string (the date format) into a Java date object. I read this from the string, but I don't know how to convert it into a millisecond date: yyyy-mm-dd What should I do? A: Use the following code: DateFormat dateFormat = new SimpleDateFormat("yyyy-mm-dd"); Date date = dateFormat.parse("2015-04-05"); Stouper Stouper is a surname of English origins.
