Suppose I have X with f_X the distribution function. I also know that X follows a Poisson distribution with parameter λ I also know that $Y = \max\{X, 0\}$ What I need to find is f_Y I don't know how to proceed, I thought of making the PDF of Y by making the Poisson distribution equation where the total number of events is equal to the pdf, and then using that to find the distribution function, but since I do not know the mean of Y , I don't know where to start, and since I'm not very sure about the equation, I don't know if that is the way to go, because I have no way of knowing the value of the n . I also thought of trying to determine the PDF of Y by taking the complementary CDF of the CDF of Y However, I don't know if this is the right approach, since I do not know the domain of the CDF, and since I'm using a Poisson distribution, I don't know if this is valid because the mean value is not defined. A: In this case, as you know X , you can calculate $E[Y]$ from the Poisson distribution. You need to use the Poisson formula $f_X(x) = \frac{e^{-\lambda} \lambda^x}{x!}$
