Actually, masks are the lanes that you place on the top of the layers and all the areas that are not covered by the layer will be hidden from the editor. So, now, you can create the layers and move the outline of the subject using the layer mask. This layer mask will remain intact while you are editing the layer that you have created. Once you are done editing, you can always move the mask using the move tool which is available just above mask layer. The best feature of using a mask layer in Photoshop is that you can change the opacity of the mask layer and thus, you can have a completely opaque or transparent mask. Another advantage of having such a mask layer is that you can easily remove the layer mask using the layer mask tone tool. In short, you can define the area where you want to paint on the image by creating the mask layer, and you can paint with the layer mask or remove it. This is the biggest advantage and the most important tool that we should know about in Adobe Photoshop.
